

White Coat Ceremony Report 2026

White Coat Ceremony in Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College, Chandkhuri, Durg of newly admitted BAMS students. The White Coat Ceremony is a solemn and significant academic event that symbolizes the formal induction of newly admitted students into the noble profession of Ayurveda. Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College, Chandkhuri, Durg, organized the White Coat ceremony for the newly admitted BAMS students with the objective of instilling professional values, ethical conduct, compassion, and responsibility towards patients and society.

Date: 31/01/2026

Time: 02:00 PM onwards.

Venue – Dhanwantari Auditorium Hall, Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College & Hospital, Chandkhuri, Durg (C.G.)

Organized By – Co-Curricular & Extra Curricular Committee, Student Council Committee, IQAC, Sanskrit Club.

Inaugural Ceremony

The program began with a vibrant inaugural ceremony. The program started with the lighting of the lamp by chief guest Dr. Vandana Fating, Principal, Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College & Hospital, Chandkhuri, Durg, addressed the gathering, highlighting the significance of White Coat as a symbol of responsibility, trust and commitment towards patient care. The program commenced with the traditional invocation seeking blessing for the success of the students and the institution. The dignitaries on the dais inaugurated the ceremony by the lighting the ceremonial lamp.

Objectives of the Ceremony:

- To formally welcome newly admitted BAMS students into the medical profession.
- To emphasize the importance of professionalism, discipline and ethical practice in Ayurveda.
- To inspire students to uphold the values of compassion, integrity and service.
- To mark the beginning of the students academic and professional journey in the field of Ayurvedic medicine.

Address by Dignitaries:

Dr. Vandana Fating, Principal, Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College & Hospital, Chandkhuri, Durg, addressed the gathering, highlighting the significance of White Coat as a symbol of responsibility, trust and commitment towards patient care. The speakers motivated the students to follow the principles of Ayurveda, maintain discipline, and serve humanity with dedication and sincerity. They also emphasized the importance of ethical conduct, lifelong learning, and holistic healthcare.

Dr. Unnayan Raj Sahu Medical Director of Rajiv Lochan Ayurved Medical College & Hospital, Chandkhuri, Durg, addressed the gathering and emphasized the significance of the white coat as a symbol of responsibility, ethics, compassion, and commitment towards the patient care. The dignitaries highlighted the importance of discipline, moral values and dedication in medical education and encouraged students to uphold the noble principles of the medical profession.

White Coat Presentation:

The most important segment of the ceremony was the formal presentation of white coats to the newly admitted BAMS students. The dignitaries and faculty members individually adorned the students with white coats, symbolizing their entry into the medical fraternity. The moment filled the students and their parents with pride and enthusiasm.

Oath/pledge Ceremony:

The students collectively took an Charak Oath, pledging to uphold the dignity of the medical profession, follow ethical principles, respect teachers and patients, and practice Ayurveda with honesty, compassion and dedication. The oath reinforced the moral and professional responsibilities of future Ayurvedic physicians.

Vote of Thanks:

The program concluded with a Vote of Thanks expressing gratitude to the dignitaries, faculty members, organizers, students, and all attendees for their cooperation and support.

Conclusion:

The White Coat Ceremony was a memorable and meaningful event that instilled a sense of pride, responsibility and motivation among the students as they embark on their journey to become compassionate and competent Ayurvedic physicians.

